Gleichen Legion To Hold Poppy Sale Next Week

Very shortly November 11th will be here again and with it millions of Canadian citizens will be wearing blood-red poppies in remembrance of the one hundred thousand heroes who gave their lives for Canada in two world wars.

Entrusted with the sale of these poppies and wreaths made by disabled veterans at Veterans shops in Montreal and Toronto the Canadian Legion will have thousands of volunteer workers on the streets soliciting sales. In 1946 these workers sold more than 4,500,000 poppies and this year the total is expected to be increased.

The monies received from the sale of the poppies and wreaths is used solely to take care of indigent veterans, widows and orphans of deceased veterans. No profit whatsoever is kept aside for any other phase of Legion work. All veterans benefit by the sale whether they are Legion members or not.

In 1945 the Legion Dominion Service Bureau obtained $246,710.43 in retroactive pensions alone, representing 1191 "lost cases" that had in the majority applied to the government for a pension and been turned down. Exceeding last year's figures the Bureau, to the end of September this year, has obtained $292,047.48 in retroactive pensions for 1152 applicants. When figured in a sum total for the rest of the applicants' lives this will run into millions of dollars.

The poppies are turned out in their millions by older veterans who are physically unable to earn a living in the commercial world. They are a year round occupation paying them a living wage.

In addition to the practical side of buying and selling poppies the Legion does not forget the main thought behind the poppy which is the symbol of remembrance for Canada's dead heroes.

The origin of the poppy is extremely interesting. In Rome mythology the red poppy was the symbol of death dedicated to Somnus the god of sleep. For centuries the red poppy which grows wild in Europe has been associated with the battlefield of Europe especially Flanders, where it grows abundantly in the wheat and uncut fields. Poppies grow profusely on the battlefields of France territory and superstitious people believed the red flowers came from the blood of the soldiers. Throughout the centuries writers referred to the profusion of poppies that sprang up on the battlefields of Lamian, Lanes, Fontenoy and Waterloo.

BABY STEPS TO DICTATORSHIP

There are few people in Canada who would estimate a dictatorship such as exists in Russia and was seen in Germany, Italy and Spain. But many who feel this way are quite agreeable to the things which bring it about. Innocent safe looking things which appear at first sight to be all to the advantage of the people, but which introduce a form of government control which easily grows into dictatorship. Take, for instance, unemployment insurance. Most people believe this to be a wise and generous provision, which protects the citizen against bad times which may come to any citizen. But, in spite of the fact that a citizen is contributing to pay it introduces regulations that are quite contrary at times to the average person's sense of freedom. This is also true of the regulations that go with the family allowance plan.

During the war with the many regulations concerning money prices, production, travel, manufacturing, etc., we had a form of dictatorship that was probably necessary but which many found income and which would be most unpopular if continued in times of peace. Government control had a big place in our daily affairs and now the government is hard to let up on the old dictatorship which they have assumed. Initiative on the part of the citizens is having a hard time to keep alive. The citizen at that when a man puts up money for an enterprise that he may expect to have something to say as to how the money will be spent. This same applies to the government. When it pays millions of dollars in unemployment insurance and family allowances we expect a measure of control which is nothing more or less than

J. M. Muller water master for the Gleichen area of the Western Irrigation district suffered serious injuries last week when his car turned over and fell on him. At the present time he is confined to a Calgary hospital.

Miss B. McQueen of Turner Valley spent several days in town last week visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. R. McQueen.

A pump-ouge has been built over the well drilled last summer near the residence of Mr. Anderson. Water mains have been laid from the well to connect up with the old mains, but a pump which has been put in its appearance yet. And it is not known when it will arrive. However, Engineer Letier has got his eye on an old pump belonging to the town and will install it if the pump ordered does not arrive pretty soon.

We are heartily in agreement with those who recommend that any person convicted of shooting another person in mistake for game should be deprived of the right to carry a gun for the remainder of his life. Back in Canada numerous lives are lost and dozens of persons are injured through careless handling of firearms. For severe rules, such as suggested above would impress upon hunters the necessity of making sure of where they are aiming before firing. Ownership of a weapon involves a grave responsibility. Anyone possessing a gun or rifle should not only exercise the greatest care in firing it, but dictatorship and the more money handed out by the government in this kind of danger from then forms of social legislation but with the introduction of communistic ideas there is great liability that our freedom may be impaired. There is a stern reality that we hold to our initiative in every way possible so that we may continue that democracy which has been our tradition, government by the people for the people.

should use the utmost caution when handling or carrying it. Safety devices should be applied at the appropriate time and a weapon should never be directed at anyone. Far too often an "empty" firearm pointed in jest has resulted in tragedy. Reports of hunting accidents are appearing in the press with such regularity that we suggest applicants for a gun license be required to prove their ability to handle a gun. Such a ruling would be irresponsible from endangering the lives of others, and might be the means of saving a number of lives each year.

In a crowded street car a very thin lady was greatly discomforted by the pressure of an extremely heavy woman who sat next to her. Finally, at last out of breath the thin lady was heard to remark: "It's a pity they don't charge by weight!" To the stout woman replied, "If they did, dearie they could not afford to stop for some people."

There are about 1050 Blackfoot Indians on the reserve and last week every man woman and child received $11 from the government. They were paid out for ration arrears due them. The payment was made in two days at the Community Hall. The first day the Indians came to Gleichen were paid out and on the second day all Indians living west received payment. The stores remained open Wednesday to accommodate the Indians and did a good business with them.

Husband: Didn't I hear you telling your friends that your dress came from abroad? Wife: Not exactly, dear. You see it's last year's dress turned inside out. I simply said, "It's from the other side."

An appeal to parents to permit their children to take life's little knocks, in order to develop self discipline and adjust their behavior to social standards. "Learning the hard way has advantages," is an old adage. A pampered child has little opportunity to learn to solve life's problems in the school of hard knocks through trial and error. Only through personal experience can we learn to conform to the standards of conduct which living demands.

Statistics compiled by the national safety council reveal that the night fatal car accident rate per mile is three times as high as the daytime rate. These conclusions were reached after special studies. The survey showed that over a twelve month period there were 1,000 fatal accidents occur at night when the traffic volume is only one-fourth of the daytime volume. There has been a decrease in the number of fatal accidents with the rise in rural areas running as high as 20 per cent. Highest death rates are reached in December and January when there are more hours of darkness. Low months were June and July when daylight hours are at a maximum. The effects of reduced visibility on the death rate were revealed in figures showing 38 per cent of the pedestrians killed between the hours of 6 and 7 p.m. met death during November, December and January when that was dark.

Wife: Our new neighbor waves kindness to his wife from the sidewalk. Wife: Don't you do that? Husband: I don't even know her yet.

The local truckmen are very busy these days hauling coal from the various coal mines in the district to town. Everybody seems to be stocking up for winter.

Autumn Travel in The National Parks

Autumn travel in the national parks is growing in popularity. Nearly 110,000 visitors entered the park gates during September, an increase of several thousands over the same month last year. In many respects autumn is the most delightful season of the year for travel in the national parks. It is a period when the increasing numbers of Canadians who can conveniently arrange their annual vacations are choosing this time of the year to visit the parks. There were also more American visitors at several of the parks than during the same period last year.

Many organizations which ordinarily hold their conventions during the busy summer months are now planning to have these meetings either in the spring or in the autumn seasons when transportation and catering facilities are not so overbooked. It is expected that this development will eventually be extended to the national parks which have become popular convention centres.

One of the chief topics discussed at the recent Dominion-Provincial tourist conference was the lengthening of the travel season in Canada so that visitors could enjoy the autumn and this winter wonderland of ours. There was general agreement that this would be a desirable development from many standpoints and of great value to the Canadian tourist industry as a whole. It would necessitate, of course, keeping hotels, bungalow cabins and other tourist facilities open for much longer periods, but this would be an obvious development if the volume of business warranted such extension on the part of those catering to the travelling public.

The scenic attractions which have made the national parks are greatly enhanced when nature turns the foliage of the woodlands into a riot of color. And if one is lucky enough to have at least a part of his vacation coincided with Indian Summer he will experience a thrill which will long be remembered and very different from anything he has previously enjoyed in the way of a holiday out of doors.

WEATHER FORECASTING IN CANADA

Agriculture is more dependent upon the weather than any other industry, with respect to agriculture particularly, the impact of variation in the weather is felt most severely in areas where the factors limiting production are small and temperature for example, vary widely from the average. This is the case in Alberta where combinations of extreme weather are not infrequently experienced. For this reason we are interested in progress being made in long time forecasting. However, we cannot look for anything better than a 48-hour forecast for several years at least.

The weather forecaster is not satisfied either but he is doing what he can about the situation. His progress is hampered by the fact that there is a "blind spot" in the Arctic, where only six weather stations cover half a million square miles. In order to forecast our weather he needs to know what is happening up there. To illustrate an equivalent area in the United States and the United States is served by 164 stations, while the reports of 760 stations in two countries are used in compiling the forecasts available at present.

In the meantime, Canada's four million man weather man is doing very good service. His forecast is for two weeks as long as it was before the war; he ties the weather down to more specific areas and nine times out of ten he is right in most things. Canada's public weather service has taken a great leap ahead since the pre-war days. Then, two offices served the country: one in Vancouver for British Columbia and the other in Toronto for the rest of Canada, employing a total of five chief meteorologists. Today there are seven main offices in the country serving 18 regions, employing 45 forecasters and 400 assistants.

Nine more stations are planned for the Arctic in the next three years but this will still leave us far behind in comparison with our polar neighbors, the Russians, who have 159 Arctic stations and the Scandinavians 59. Which brings us to another reason why we cannot expect a "weather month ahead" for a while. It is the shortage of skilled scientific personnel necessary to man new stations. On the lack of specialists in meteorology are noted. High qualifications are demanded but the meteorologist gets less in pay than a bricklayer.

With maths and physics degrees and a Master of Meteorology degree behind him, the meteorologist entering the service gets $1,920 a year and cannot rise above $4,020. Added to this, other fields of physics research such as atomic energy are attracting the brightest of our universities. As a result, when recruits were sought this year for the meteorological service only seven applied, of whom only one was acceptable—Alberta Department of Agriculture.

A Commendable Undertaking

IN THE CONSIDERATION of present world problems, and the many means by which it is hoped that peace may be preserved, perhaps too little attention is paid to the important part which education can play in this regard. Education is not a quick road to the solution of any problem and it is apparent that many of the present difficulties are urgent and have little connection with the slow process of learning. It should not be overlooked, however, that one avenue to lasting peace lies in building up tolerance, and understanding of world problems in the minds of the boys and girls who are now growing up.

Race Hatreds Engender War

Race hatreds and group prejudices always have their place in engendering a war, and any efforts which may be made to break down these barriers in the minds of young people are to be commended. A recent item from Great Britain tells how school children from all parts of that country met recently to learn about the problems which are now facing the world. Special emphasis was laid on the difficulties which people of other lands are trying to overcome. A seven-day course on international affairs was planned for them by the Council of Education in World Citizenship, a non-political body upon which there are representatives of professional teachers' associations, youth organizations, and educational authorities.

British People Are Tolerant

Those children who attended the course voluntarily gave up one week of their school holidays to these studies. It may be questioned as to whether there is a great need for British children to be taught principles of tolerance and goodwill to people of other nations, for Britain has been as free as any country in the world of exaggerated forms of intolerance or prejudice. The fact that such undertakings are encouraged, however, shows that even here the need for promoting international goodwill and understanding is recognized by groups such as the one which organized this gathering. Certainly nothing can be lost by fostering the broadest possible outlook which the children who are growing up today, and such efforts should be commended and encouraged wherever they may be made.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

The five-year-old kept fidgeting at the group's afternoon social. At last she turned to the young lady beside her, extending a small hand.

"Here's your nickel, mummy," she said. "I'd rather talk."

First speaker: "I'm growing tough to pay 50c for a pound of meat."

Second speaker: "Yes, but it's even tougher when you pay 50c."

"So your husband's in the army, Mrs. Wright?"

"Yes, they've made him a gunner, and that's what he's been ever since I married him."

"Always been a gunner?"

"Yes, ever since I was married. He's been a gunner do this and a gunner do that, but he never did anything worth while."

Mrs. Brown (displaying new lampshade): "Isn't it perfectly lovely? And it only cost $8.98!"

Brown: "If you wear that to church tomorrow, you go alone."

"Hand it over," said the tough. "I'll feel like a fool cry, you know."

"I bear your new lodge is a very impulsive fellow. Does everything in the heat of the moment."

"Yes, it's his job. He's a blacksmith."

A wealthy woman asked an assistant in a shop for instructions on how to make a dog's jacket.

"How big is the dog?" asked the girl; but the woman's illustrations were not very helpful.

"Perhaps you'd better bring the dog in," suggested the girl.

"Oh, I can't do that! It's to be a surprise for him!"

A celebrated vocalist was in a motorcar accident one day. A paper after recording the accident, added: "We are happy to state that he was able to appear at the following evening in three pieces."

"Tommy," said the teacher, "can you quote a famous African proverb?" After a moment's desperate thought, Tommy smiled. "Yes, Sir," he said brightly. "The darkey's hour is just before the dawn."

She: "Here's a story of a man out west who bartered his wife for a horse. You wouldn't swap me for a horse, would you darling?"

He: "Of course not (pans), but I'd hate to have anyone tempt me with a good motor car."

"Senator, you promised me a job."

"But there are no jobs open."

"Well, you said you'd give me one."

"Tell you what I'll do. I'll appoint a commission to investigate why there are no jobs, and you can work on that."

NEW INDUSTRY—The cucumber crop in Prince Edward Island has been outstanding this year. In many districts they were grown by the acre. Mathew-Wells, well-known picking firm in Charlottetown, has started a new industry with these cucumbers. Farmers from all over the island bring their crop of cucumbers into Mathew-Wells. The company pays the farmers as high as seven cents a pound for the very small ones. From the warty little vegetables are shipped to the firm's processing and packing headquarters at Charlottetown. First, however, they are separated according to size, and then dumped into one of the company's two hundred five-ton vats filled with brine. Here they are cured and soon are ready for shipment. A new industry has been born in Canada's smallest province. Open air vats receive the crop of cucumbers as they come from the fields; after curing in brine they are shipped for processing to Guelph, Ont.

HOG POPULATION SHOW GAINS IN WESTERN PROVINCES

Prairie farmers have not rushed back into the hog business at such a rate as their eastern competitors, although every western province shows gains in the hog population, ranging from 2.6 per cent. in Alberta to 12.7 per cent. in Manitoba, according to figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Total hog population of Canada at June 1 numbered 5,473,200, up from 4,800,200 a year earlier. Nova Scotia, with increase of 23.9 per cent. and Quebec and Ontario with 22.3 and 11.5 per cent. respectively, were far ahead of the western provinces.

Part of this exaggerated rise in the eastern provinces is no doubt due to the federal feed subsidy which gives a price preference to eastern livestock products. Shortage of feed throughout the country this season will probably cut the fall pig crop in spite of the subsidy. The bureau estimates that the increase over last year's fall crop will be less than 6.9 per cent. indicated at June 1. The spring pig crop, by contrast, was up 10.5 per cent. over the spring of 1946. Marketing of a considerable number of sows recently gives weight to this estimate.

Many People Ignore Great Fire Hazards

The Farmer's Advocate says: In spite of all warnings and examples of loss of life and property by fire, people will allow rubbish to accumulate and become a fire hazard. They will use kerosene or gasoline in starting fires; they will heat paraffin wick over a direct fire; they will neglect to clean the stove pipes; they will keep matches loose in their pocket and some will even smoke in bed or on the couch. If inclined to take a chance a reminder of some fire tragedy quoted in a prominent place might be a deterrent to carelessness or thoughtlessness.

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

THE FIRST ACT OF DIGESTION

It is necessary to masticate every piece of food in order to have good teeth and to assure an adequate digestion. Mastication cuts, crushes and mills everything we eat and so it is the first act of digestion. That is the reason why children must be taught to eat slowly. They must never swallow food without thoroughly chewing it.

Needless to say that, on this item as on many others, parents must provide a good example to all members of the household.

However, in order that mastication be rightly practiced, particular attention must be given to dental hygiene. The dentist should be seen at least twice a year so as to keep the smallest touch of dental decay should be immediately treated. Every child and adult should have their own tooth-brush and use it at least once a day.

Parents should insist that their children brush their teeth after each meal whenever possible.

Canada's Fastest Growing Province

The Montreal Gazette says: The most striking record of development in the statistics is that of British Columbia. In proportion to its population it is growing at a rate far above that of any other province in the Dominion, including the province of Quebec. In fact, to equal British Columbia's relative rate of increase, Quebec's would have to be more than doubled.

New Bentonite Deposits Found In Manitoba

Surveyors Report Area South Of Thornhill With Possible Commercial Value

A Manitoba Mines Branch Geological field party reports that a new deposit of bentonite of possible commercial importance has been found in the area south of Thornhill. The component beds can be seen in a fresh cut on the road allowance between sections 20 and 21, township 2, range 6, west of the principal meridian; approximately three-quarters of a mile south of the northeast corner of section 20. The distance from the deposit to the nearest railway station, Thornhill, is five miles. Bentonite beds are correlated with the beds presently being mined north of Thornhill and are the thick bentonites of the Pembina member of the Vermilion River formation.

The bentonite beds appear to be as thick as those measured at other localities but the intervening shale beds may be slightly thicker. The deposit lies in a broad valley and is covered by 20 feet, more or less, of weathered shale or clay. The elevation of the bentonite beds is slightly less than 1,500 feet above mean sea level.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Epitaph And The Sirens

Epitaph Jones closed the door of the crazy old cabin with a resounding bang. He gave the house a malignant look before he turned and stomped noisily off the sagging porch. He squared his shoulders, set his gaudy cap at a jaunty angle, and swaggered off toward the not-far-distant town.

The path that Mr. Jones followed meandered irresolutely across a wide expanse of black and gray ash heaps. Piles of tin cans glittered in a weary sunlight and grimy children and hony coats raced about him. A chilling wind added nothing to the bleak landscape.

Though he looked a care-free figure, Epitaph's thoughts were acutely painful. "A weepin' woman. Always a weepin'." Livin' in lark, a lovin' man, all the work she can do and still she weeps. No sooner she says weepin' for one thing she begins to weep for somethin' else. Weep and cry and weep, till I need me a ax, if I go on waterin' her, she weeps much longer. I gotta find me some real sunshine someplace, quick."

As though drawn by a magnet, his feet climbed a steep market, passed a pool hall, a fruit market, bather shop, a pawn shop. He turned through a white-washed gate into a quiet yard where a row of trees and great gray stumps waited their summer crop of flowers. Gaily painted outlines outlined the path that led to a bright blue door in a small brown house. Even the watery sunlight seemed brighter here.

Epitaph's knock was answered by a trim young woman who greeted him with a pleased laugh. "Why, how-de-do, Mr. Jones. I was just sayin' to myself I 'd like to see nice Mr. Jones would drop along and here you come promanadin' in. Do have this easy chair, Mr. Jones, and lemme take your hat."

Mr. Jones relaxed into an imitation leather chair and looked about approvingly. White curtains, yellow floors, brightly varnished furniture and scarlet geraniums in the window made a delightful picture to a man lately accustomed to a house used to a Niohe.

And the entrancing being beside him in the rose-colored dress, lip-sticked, rouged and perfumed, whose charming laugh bubbled out at his lightest remark—surely, she was a veritable beam of sunshine in a cloudy world. No gloom. No tears. Just laughter and light and loveliness.

Water Falls In Saskatchewan

The above picture of the "Roaring Rapids" falls, located on the F. E. Shirliff Ranch at Log Valley, 26 miles south of Riverhurst on the South Saskatchewan River, was taken by Fred Richardson, an old-time rancher in this district, in 1927. The falls have changed but little in two decades, it has still a good spring creek which rises on the Shirliff ranch (this land was formerly owned by Fred Richardson, an old-time rancher in this district), and the location of the spring is wooded, making ideal picnic grounds which are used by many throughout the summer. It is a pretty spot, and one that is decidedly popular. The ranch is in the river valley and much of it will be flooded if the proposed dam on the river materializes.

stream. He looked back at the shore he had just left and metaphorically he shook both fists at the crazy cabin and the most brown house.

"No more women for me!" vowed Mr. Jones grimly. Never will I even speak to one again. Weepin' women! And laughin' women! WOMEN! WOMEN! Mr. Jones in an overwhelming rush of hysterical cries beat on the sandy shore. A crooked path led him to a small clearing in a wood.

On a ragged blanket before a ramshackle hut built mostly of packing cases and tin strips, sprawled a male, relaxed, half-hidden in a haze of rank tobacco smoke. A scrawny woman equally relaxed, don't bear him, As Epitaph Jones gazed on that peaceful scene a sense of relief, of security, swept over him. He spoke fervently.

"At last! No more henners. No more fat-lions. Just sweet peace and restfulness."

The man on the blanket looked up. He spoke with a rare economy of effort.

"Hi, Epitaph. Make y'elf 'thome. Meet M' 'S' Vang'line." He closed his eyes, sighed.

Epitaph, in the very act of dropping into the blanket, stared, appalled. The man on the blanket had framed a radiant vision—ribbons and ruffles and black eyes and little scented hair.

Epitaph shivered—half turned to "There's Romance too! I need me a change of climate, bad, and with you a change of well forever in one spot. A glorious deliriousness," concluded Mr. Jones in an ecstatic burst of poetry.

RECIPES

CORN GRIDDLECAKES
Corn in the batter gives delicious taste. These make cakes that fit many diets.

2 cups sifted flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups milk
2 cups cooked corn (cream style)
4 tablespoons melted shortening
Sift flour, corn, measure, add baking powder, salt, pepper, and sugar, and sift together into bowl.
Combine eggs, milk, and corn and add to flour mixture. Add shortening. Mix only enough to dampen flour.

Bake thoroughly on hot, greased griddle. Serve at once on warm plates with butter and syrup. Or serve with sugar, bacon, or eggs for supper plates. Makes about 2 dozen.

APPLESAUCE BETTY
2 1/2 cups unsweetened applesauce
2 cups whole wheat flakes
1 cup melted butter
1 cup light brown sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon

Arrange applesauce in a loaf pan or casserole in alternate layers with whole wheat flakes which have been moistened with sugar and butter. Top layer of the whole wheat flakes mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Serve with cream if desired. Yield: 6 servings (4 1/2 x 9-inch dish).

GRAND RAPIDS—Police, tracing a 1941 model automobile that left the city of an accident, said the car changed hands five times in as many days at an average increase of $100 per sale.

Police said the original owner received $300 for the car on a trade-in. The car passed through the hands of three dealers before the present owner bought it for $500.

Canada's Combat Force To Have Wings

Plan To Train And Equip Ground Forces For Swift Movement By Air

OTTAWA—The Canadian Army's active force is swinging along now in its peacetime development, aimed at creating a combat-force-with-wings with all units and their equipment completely transportable by air.

The last war saw the army emerge as a fast, mechanized fighting force, but now they are going to give it a mobility it never has in its history.

It is a radical plan to train and equip the ground force infantry, armor and services for swift movement by air to practically any point in the world. There is no other country in the world which has laid down plans to make its entire combat force air transportable by glider, troop-carrying planes and giant equipment transporters.

Paratroops enter into these calculations, but the emphasis is on creating a mechanized fighting force that can be lifted by air to any danger point and landed with all its equipment rather than dropped by parachute with limited resources.

In this airborne development, Canada has an aware eye to the problems of northern and Arctic defence because it is imperative need for speed in concentrating her scattered units at danger points if they threaten in any part of the domain.

The work on this long-range plan has begun at the joint air school at Rivers, Man., where the first group of captains and lieutenants from active service units have just completed their training in airborne work, in co-operation with the R.C.A.F.

Other groups of officers and non-commissioned officers will follow this first class to Rivers and all return to their units to train their platoons and companies in the new work.

A crack special air service company at Rivers—mainly composed of paratroops—trains these active service members. This is the company from which paratroops have been drawn for dramatic Arctic rescue work.

The emphasis in the creation of Canada's new army is on the airborne feature. Within a matter of a few years, it is expected that the three regular infantry battalions, the two armored regiments and the services forming the brigade group will be able to be moved by air as easily as they now are moved by truck or train.

EDITORS ARE USUALLY

BLAMED NOT PRAISED

A story is told in Minnesota that an editor of a paper had to be carried home on a stretcher as the result of having received a kind word because of something he had printed. The shock seemingly unnerved him. Just as he reached his home, someone gave him a tongue lashing about another item he had printed. The editor got up and went back to work.

EXPENSIVE OILS

Some fine oils which tannery use in lubricating sole leather, to increase its water-resistance and flexibility, costs more than butter.

Stamp Chosen In World-Wide Poll

OTTAWA—Canada's commemorative stamp to Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, has been chosen in a world-wide poll as one of the 12 best designs of all issues by all countries since 1939, it was learned here.

W. J. Turnbull, Deputy Postmaster-General, said he has received word from a Stanley Devine, chief of the United Kingdom postage stamp division in London, that the large blue four-cent stamp placed fourth in the first balloting of its kind since a European country gained first place, it was understood here.

The Bell stamp was issued on the inventor's birthday last March.

B.C. Does Not Need Immigrants

VICTORIA—British Columbia was getting all the population it could handle from other parts of Canada without bringing in immigrants from the rest of the world, Finance Minister Herbert Anscombe said here.

In an address to the annual meeting of the Victoria Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Anscombe, provincial treasurer, said the province "couldn't absorb any outside population without disturbing provincial economy."

Since 1940, the coalition government minister said, British Columbia had absorbed 230,000 persons from other parts of the domain.

The name sugar applies to more than 100 substances, such as sucrose, glucose, fructose, lactose, maltose and others.

PLAYS COWBOY—For the last time before he is down to Denver, Col., for another critical operation, Forrest "Nubbin" Hoffman, 6, Cheyenne, Wyo., plays cowboy on his little "broncho." "Nubbin" attracted attention and sympathy three years ago when he celebrated what was expected to be his last Christmas. A miracle of surgery saved him. Now, stunted by a rare kidney disease, "Nubbin" will again meet the same surgeon who thinks there's a probable "1000-to-1" chance that the operation will make it possible for him to grow normally.

Mrs. E. W. Taylor and son, Edgar returned to town last week after an extended visit to her daughter in Seattle, Wash., and her son William at Trail, B.C.

George Adamsky, age 92 years, died at Eventide Home early Tuesday morning. He was born in Poland and had spent 51 years of his life in Alberta and about 40 years as a coal miner near Drumheller. He had been a resident of Eventide Home for the past eleven years and was a widower. The funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 p.m. with Major A. F. Parkinson officiating after which internment was made in Eventide cemetery.

Reporter: And now that your son is a big movie star, does he ever come back to the old farm? Pappy: Yes, sirs, every summer. Even one of the summers he's been away. Reporter: And did he bring his wife with him? Pappy: Every time. And they were five as purty gals as you ever laid eyes on!
